

Vibrant West End appeals

Landscaped surrounds and resort-style facilities

WITH completion of stage one due by the end of the month, opportunities to purchase in Stockwell's luxury riverfront development Riverpoint are quickly running out.

More than 85 per cent of the project has been sold with just 22 apartments remaining, priced from $725,000.

With its sophisticated design and pet-friendly surrounds, Riverpoint has been attracting a good mix of buyers seeking to live within vibrant West End.

The first stage will comprise four buildings called Symmetry, Sanctuary, Harmony and Mosaic, as well as a host of facilities for residents.

Surrounded by landscaped grounds, resort-style facilities include a recreational pool, gymnasium and change facilities, and a fully-maintained herb garden.

Because of the development's prime position on the Brisbane River there is an abundance of open space surrounding Riverpoint.

From kilometres of river walks to Orleigh Park literally at the doorstep of the development, to South Bank and the restaurants, cafes and boutiques within West End, there is no end to the amenities within walking distance.

Capturing the essence of indoor/outdoor living, there is an open-plan layout in the dwellings that effortlessly flows to elegant alfresco spaces.

Each of the luxury apartments available feature only the finest fixtures and fittings throughout including chef-designed kitchens, European appliances, heated towel rails, reverse-cycle airconditioning and broadband internet.

Buyers can get a taste of what to expect in the project with a display apartment showcasing the features of the architecturally designed apartments.

Stockwell managing director Mark Stockwell said they had drawn from their experience and understanding of West End to create an elegant haven that complements the local area.

"The display apartment illustrates the uncompromising standard of the development and will give prospective purchasers a sense of how their lifestyle could be transformed," he said.

Already residents are enjoying the lifestyle benefits of Riverpoint with many having made the move into their new home before Christmas.
